

Semi structured database

A semi-structured database is like a jigsaw puzzle where the pieces don't have to fit together perfectly. You can save information in a more flexible way, like using different shapes for puzzle pieces. This is helpful when you have different types of information that don't all look the same.